EUROPE'S GREEN DEAL AND NEW SUP (SINGLE-USE PLASTICS) DIRECTIVE - A MARKET CHALLENGE

The new SUP-Directive is an uncompromisingly clear call-to-action and a challenging project for manufacturers to re-think traditional products.

Recognising the significant negative environmental and health impacts of single-use plastics, in May 2019 the EU approved a pioneering piece of legislation: The Single-Use Plastics Directive (SUP Directive).

Its aim is to reduce the amount of single-use plastics, which are the biggest source of marine litter within the EU today. According to studies carried out by the European Commission, plastics account for 85% of marine litter found in the EU.

The SUP-measures include EU-wide bans and regulations to reduce consumption of key single-use plastic items, among them plates and beverage cups by 2021.

The directive also includes single-use paper items with plastic lining (so called plastic-coated paper) or with polymers in their fibre structure. These items are subject to restrictions even if they are certified biodegradable and compostable.

As per July 3rd, 2021, single-use party plates have to be upgraded from traditional products to “plastic free” versions and severe guidelines for marking drinking cups need to be followed.

CLIMATE NEUTRAL PRODUCT BRANDING: LET'S ADD VALUE TO YOUR PRODUCT

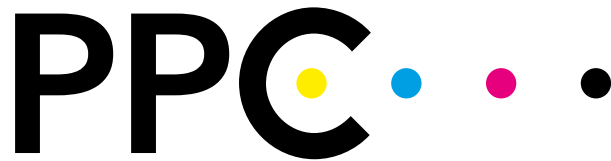

At PPC we offer the possibility to brand your products “climate neutral”, thanks to our collaboration with ClimatePartner. In doing so, we calculate all CO₂ emissions that inevitably arise during production of your product and throughout its entire process chain, and offset them via recognized climate protection projects that you will be free to choose from.

Branding your product climate neutral will have a double benefit: your company concretely sets actions to fight global warming while increasing at the same time your brand's attractiveness by satisfying potential environmentally-concerned customers with your environmental commitment.

Consumers are increasingly paying attention to where their purchases come from and their environmental impact
